WHY PAY RENT?

CAPITOL HILL ADDITION. We have recently purchased the seventy acres of the old Brevard school, and have platted it in acre lots with wide streets and alleys. This property is nicely situated, being within from 8 to 10 blocks of the center of the business portion of Ada. We expect to give you a chance to own a valuable lot in the capital of Pontotoc county by selling these lots on the installment plan.

Ada is now the county seat, and has a great future before it. We have three railroads with a prospect of two more, a cotton compress, a cotton oil mill, a pressed brick plant, and numerous smaller industries. Also have a large cement plant under construction that will employ 250 men, there is under construction a canning factory and the city is spending $40,000 on additional water works.

WHY SHOULD ADA NOT GROW?

CAPITOL HILL lies northeast of the business portion of the city, and has a fine view of the city. Plenty of good water at from 15 to 20 feet.

If you expect to grow up with the town now is the time to GET IN ON THE GROUND FLOOR. We also do a general Real Estate and Insurance business. See us for any business in our line. Office first door west of the Harris hotel.

Especially Valued by Elderly People Who Suffer.

A large Eastern publication tells its readers of a number of simple and safe prescriptions that can be made at home. The following, however, for the cure of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles receives the greatest praise, viz., Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; hook Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Progress of the Cannery

Both buildings of the canning factory are now practically complete-the machinery house and the office and labelling building. The latter was under construction before it was known the lot for the other one could be acquired. It is thought the machinery building by a little addition can be made to accommodate the entire business; so the other building may be sold, inasmuch as a good purchaser is ready to take it for a boarding house.

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

SWALLOW'S FLIGHT IS RAPID.

Speed of 128 Miles An Hour Determined in an Experiment.

The French scientific weekly, Ciel et Terre, prints an interesting article about the speed of several birds, as observed by August Vershcurin of Antwerp. The rapidity of flight credited to the swallow (290 feet a second) seemed exaggerated to him and he undertook some experiments on his own

He sent several baskets of pigeons to Compeigne, France, and in a separate cage a swallow which had its nest under the gable roof of the railroad station at Antwerp. On November 7, at 7:30 in the morning, all the birds were liberated at Compeigne; the swallow took a northern direction as quick as lightning, while the pigeons made several spirals in the air tion. The swallow arrived at its nest nesses being present at its arrival.

The first pigeons only arrived at their destination at 11:30 of the same morning. The swallow had, therefore, covered the entire distance of 1461/2 miles in one hour and 18 minutes, which is equal to a speed of 1281/2 miles an hour, or about 189 feet a second, which is about double the speed

The pigeons only reached a speed of 35 miles an hour, or 48 feet a second. It may be gathered from these figures swallows take place, as with the speed given above it would require only half a day to fly from Belgium or Central Germany to northern Africa.

With a Real Octopus.

Here is an octopus adventure. The crew of the Perle, a fishing boat hailing from Cancale, France, between St. Malo and Mont. St. Michael, were about to pull in a big net, when they encountered a sudden resistance. The net was simply crammed, not, however, with good mackerel, but with vast number of octopi, each provided with tentacles more than six feet in length. The slimy wretches swarmed up one side of the craft, giving the fishers a frightful experience. The men had at last to cut the rope of the net, sacrificing it altogether, and then to free the side of the boat from the octopi which stuck to it.

Action of Water Destroys Relic Prizec by Antiquarians.

One of three known examples in the United States, the famous Indian "sculpture" on two of the immense rocks which form the "great falls" of the Connecticut river at Bellows Falls, has been entirely obliterated, not a trace of the marking which recorded some important event in the history of the aborigines being left.

The sculpture was a favorite subject of discussion for antiquarians, and developed much controversy as to the manner and time in which it was made. When first discovered it consisted of a group of sixteen or eight een variously ornamented heads plainly cut into the rocks. The main piece of work was shown on a flat space about fifteen feet wide and six feet high, and consisted of four heads each surmounted with a pair of rays and numerous heads without any decoration. On the other rock was one large head with at least eight rays this head being fourteen inches in depth and ten inches across at the forehead. There may have been originally also an inscription, but if so It had become obliterated by the action of the water years ago.

The markings are supposed to have represented a victory at or near Bellows Falls by four bands and their chiefs under one principal chief.

The fact that the action of the water has removed what was discovered on the rocks a hundred years or so ago indicates to not a few that much more of the record must have disappeared previously.

A Telephonic Surprise.

Tough Luck.

"Did you call at Roxley's house?" asked the young doctor's wife. "Yes," replied the doctor, "and I wish he had sent for me sooner." "Gracious, is he so seriously ill?" 'No; just the contrary. I'm afraid in half a dozen visits."

CLEOPATRA AS SHE WAS.

Historians and Poets Have Given Us Their Production Very Similar to That Diverse Characters.

On the pages of Plutarch and Dion Cassius-so far as we are concernednecessity, the vigorous, able and unscrupulous queen, fighting for her throne and dynasty by every method in her power.

In the Cleopatra of the unadorned story there is remarkably little hunger and thirst after unrighteousness for its own sake. Each one of her immoral armours had its political purpose.

As for her suggested decadence, it is significant that she was a most excellent mother to her children-not only to Caesarion, but to the three she had by Antony, of whom the two eldest sons were twins. She is charged nowhere with any unnatural vices, and the money she lavished on Antony's pleasures was mostly his own. Also it is worth remembering that at her best she was not beautiful, but lively, acy and "good company."

Now, out of this real, strenuous, ractical Cleopatra what diverse wonders have not the poets created!

How Porlock Got Its Name.

In North Somerset, England, said Henry Bradley, one might be told that once upon a time the devil and a giant laid a wager, the latter staking his soul, as to which could throw a stone furthest. The giant threw his stone four miles, but the devil beat him by a couple of yards, whereupon the giant exclaimed: "Poor luck!" and so the place has been called Porlock ever

Mr. Bradley then instanced the corruption of the word Kent (whose Britsh name was Cantion) from a Welsh word meaning open country. It was the ancient name was Londinion. Llyn is Welsh for lake, and din for town or fort. What was more easy, Llynddin would not explain Londinion. The only philological explanation posafter a Briton named Londinos, meaning wild or fierce.

The late Prof. Cope, when in New Mexico, had a plate of rotunds offered him as a dainty relish. Dr. Loew reported that the Mexicans press the insects and use the honey at their meals. They were also said to prepare from it by fermentation an alcoholic drink. Another naturalist learned that the natives apply it to bruises and swollen limbs. It has been suggested seriously tha these ants might by culture attain the rank of bees as honey producers. The difficulty of farming the colonies, and the limited quantity of the product, would prevent a profitable industry. The average amount of honey in a single rotund was by weight about 40 (0.3942) grams, a little over eight times (8.2) that of the ant's body. But counting the number of rotunds in a nest at 600-utmost the observation would justify-the entire product would be only two-thirds of a pound troy, collected at the cost of all the honey-bearers' lives. Such results disbar those insects from the field of human industry.

CHINA'S PRESS AND IDOLS.

People Are Awakening to Folly of An cient Custom.

"Whilst the Chinese government is trying to coerce the editors and prevent them from interfering with local customs and usages, the native press here in the south is attacking idolatry with sword and spear." writes a Canwas a time when missionaries were blamed for venturing to to say anything disrespectful against the idols of China and when we have heard some of them preach we must say that, in the main they have been very tactful in their dealings with these things. But the Chinese themselves are not in any way sensitive in their handling of the question.

"Idols and the like, incense burning and all its accessories, incantations and all their kindred superstitions are heaped together and, so to speak, set on fire in the presence of the people. The whole system is held up to ridicule and condemned as stupid, expensive and degrading in the extreme. The people are urged to sweep away the whole paraphernalia without keeping any part of it worth a cash.

"Confucian classics are quoted as showing that when Confucius was leading the people into paths of righteousness and happiness, idols had not yet invaded China; foreigners are also held up as worthy of imitation, for they at least only worship one God. Many people suffer constantly from a sense of over-fatigue which entirely prevents sleep at night. A hot bath taken before retiring is a capital antidote in some cases, but in others the bath acts as a stimulant rather than a narcotic, and prevents rather than engenders sleep. Does Not Have Last Words.

Rear Admiral Coghlan, commandant | The cognitete success of this exp utation as a relator of good stories ing industry and will prove an especial has increased each time he has spoken at a dinner, told a story a few nights ago which was given to illustrate his distaste for being the last speaker.

"Having the last word," the rear admiral said, "reminds me of a story I heard not long ago.

"A certain man died and a clergy man was engaged to offer a eulogy The worthy minister prepared a sermon of exceeding length and strength but just before he entered the parlor to deliver it he thought that it might be advisable to learn what the dead man's last words had been. So he

"If you wish to preserve a uniformity of good looks, switch your looking glass around every little while," said the girl who was hauling her bureau across the room. "Sherlock Holmes put me on to that idea. He pointed out that the side of the body that the light strikes most directly while dressing will be best groomed. The harr will be curled more artistically, the powder will be laid on more smoothly and even the clothes will be arranged more becomingly. This being so, it stands to reason that the side that gets most attention day in and day out is going to improve at the same ratio as the neglected side deteriorates and that the person who dresses for months before a glass that stands always in the same position as regards the light is going to get feally lopsided so far as good looks is concerned."

She Knew It Well.

The social settlement worker had been telling the story of Moses to a class of small children in a mission school.

Had Laugh on Doctor.

An anecdote of Leo. XIII. is recalled in a Turin journal by Count Chispolti, apropos of the death of Dr. Lapponi, who was the pope's private physician. One day it was imperative for Leo to give a long audience, turned to one of the weeping younger but he had a bad cold, and to mitigate it the doctor gave him a box of tablets with the request to take one every now and then. After a while Lapponi, who remained in a distant corner of the hall, noticed that the pope did not follow his directions, so to call his attention to them, he began to hem and cough. Presently the pope said to an attendant: "Tell the doctor to come to me." These words caused some anxiety, but when Lapponi hastened to his side, the pope took the medicine from his pocket and handing the box to him, said: "Doctor, I noticed you were hoarse; won't you take some of these tablets?"

Definitions in Bohemia.

"Be careful, here comes a grafter." said one as they saw him enter the cafe and glance around over the crowd as if in search of somebody he knew. "He's not a grafter," said another.

"He's a piker." "What's the difference?" asked the

"A grafter is a man who borrows money," was the answer, "and never pays it back, but a piker is a rung lower on the ladder. He has given up all hope of getting more money, but he'll wait around till you buy him a drink, or he'll take your box of cigarettes when you are not looking and empty half of them into his pocket."

Checks to Flirtation.

"When I went abroad to Baden Baden last summer," said the little invalid, "my husband gave me an Elk pin to wear and my father a Masonic one. They said if there were any Masons or Elks on board ship they would "His mother," shouted the delighted look after me.

"Every blessed man on board was "What did Moses' mother do with either a Mason or an Elk, and not a one of them would flirt with me on account of those pins.

"You can bet when I sailed for trunk and kept them there."

Motive Not Quite Clear.

"So he gave you a dog?" "Yes," answered the man who can be sarcastic at times. "He must like you."

ADDITIONAL APPROPRIATION WILL NOT COME EASY

Every recollection of the statchood yealed. legislation is somewhat nauseating to the Speaker. He was not molified by the result of the election in Oklahoma, and in that mood the course of the constitutional convention has made a worse impression upon him than upon any one else, and, it may be added, few in Washington, democrat or republican, have been highly edified by the reports of that body's proceedings. Speaker, for these reasons, is not in sympathy with the appeal for help that has come from Oklahoma, but he has not threatened the power of his position to defeathit.

Progress of the Cannery

Both buildings of the canning factory are now practically complete—the machinery house and the office and labelling building. The latter was under construction before it was known the lot for the other one could be acquired. It is thought the machinery building by a little addition can be made to accommodate the entire business, so the other building may be sold, masmuch as a good purchaser is ready to take it for a boarding house

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central busins allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This inhusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The over traft system is wring and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.
